- Block1: Artemis Inc Artemis Inc Artemis Premium guides, survival gear, trophy permits, and official trails for those who can afford the wild. Makes the wild scary, discredits locals, then sells confidence back as prestige. The strixwolf encounter and preserve danger are exactly the kind of fear Artemis can monetize. Polished and condescending, sizes up the party's gear and means, and warms the more 'unlicensed' competence it senses to discredit. Evidence, embarrassment, liability, or a public contradiction moves them more than moral appeal. pages/entities/artemis-inc.html AR-tuh-miss ink
- Block2: The prestige name in the outdoors, the brand that turned the open wild into a gated experience. Premium guides, survival gear, trophy permits, and official trails for those who can afford the wild. Privatize the wilderness: amplify the danger, delegitimize the people who know the land for free, then sell the confidence back as a premium experience. True believers and tired workers keep the public promise alive while managers monetize the gap between promise and harm. Quietly marking danger routes as premium experiences while local knowledge gets dismissed as unlicensed. Institutional beliefs: The Guide They Discredited; Premium Survival Dependency; The Hunt as Prestige Theater.

Seed only for a future theme pass; do not generate music in this implementation.
- Block5: The strixwolf encounter and preserve danger are exactly the kind of fear Artemis can monetize. Daily life depends on the public promise and is harmed by the private business model. The deeper truth is never player-facing on first contact: the public service also sustains the danger that makes the service profitable. Deepest layer, GM-only: Board ownership/collusion sits behind this brand. Surface only as hints and patterns. surface Artemis Inc looks like its public promise: Premium guides, survival gear, trophy permits, and official trails for those who can afford the wild. hint The promise has a crack: a failed product, a frightened worker, a predatory clause, or a story that does not match what the party saw. earned seam The crack points upward into coordinated market theater.
