

Fire Solutions

Player-facing description

Orange water-wagons, fire-bright crews, free Ember Alarms, and a smiling foreman who always arrives impressively early.

Public role

The Refuge and the Fire Walk show the burned ground and the grateful survivors who now pay a retainer.

Handout text

Fire Solutions?: ahead of the flames. Heroic crews, fast wagons, and a retainer for every household that wants to be saved in time.

GM truth

Fire Solutions sells protection from a danger it quietly supplies: burn the brush, let the woods catch, arrive as heroes, and bill the survivors.

GM handling

Use Fire Solutions in the Refuge and Fire Walk material to make the corporate satire bite: the rescue is real, and so is the racket.

- Block1: Fire Solutions Fire Solutions FireSafe Heroic fire-safety crews who clear dangerous brush, sell fire wards, and are always, impressively, first on the scene. Sell protection from a danger they quietly supply: burn the brush, then the woods, then the bill. The Refuge and the Fire Walk show the burned ground and the grateful survivors who now pay a retainer. Heroically friendly, proud of the rescues, and visibly uncomfortable if you ask who reported the fire. Proof of where a fire started, a burn pattern that does not match an accident, or a survivor who saw the wagons arrive too early. pages/entities/fire-solutions.html FY-er so-LOO-shunz
- Block2: The frontier's trusted name in fire safety, first wagon to every blaze and first invoice after. Brush-clearing crews, fire wards, water-wagons, and the Refuge's burned-over perimeter. Manufacture the emergency they answer: thin the forest, let it catch, arrive as heroes, and sell the retainer to everyone who just watched a neighbor burn. Real firefighters who love the saving part work beside managers who schedule the 'controlled' burns; most crews do not know which fires were homework. Running cheerful 'fire awareness' drives in the dry season while controlled burns creep closer to villages that have not yet subscribed. Institutional beliefs: The Season We Saved Everyone (Who Paid); Brush Is Liability; A Grateful Village Renews.

- Block4: Fire Solutions?: ahead of the flames. Fire-bright orange and ash-grey, water-wagon livery, soot-smudged but smiling, and a heroic mascot firefighter giving a thumbs-up over a saved cottage. Forest's been awful dry lately. Lucky we're close! First on the scene, every time, that's the Fire Solutions promise! Can't put a price on safety. So we put a retainer on it! Use the generated logo as the profile mark; show the heroic public rescue and the buried cause separately. Seed only for a future theme pass; do not generate music in this implementation.
- Block5: The Refuge's survivors and the Fire Walk's scorched ground are Fire Solutions' satisfied customers. Daily safety in the dry season depends on a brand that profits from the very fire it fights. Never player-facing on first contact: the 'controlled' burns are not always controlled, and not always accidental. Deepest layer, GM-only: Board ownership sits behind this brand; the burns keep protection demand healthy, and the money flows up to Athervast. surface Fire Solutions looks like heroic fire safety: fast crews, free alarms, grateful villages. earned They are always first, sometimes impossibly first, and the people who did not subscribe are the ones who burn. gm_only They set what they fight; the peril is the product, routed to the Board. Knowledge 12 reads a burn pattern that started in cleared brush, not lightning. Presence 13 gets a guilt-sick crew member to admit the 'controlled'...
- Imagine It Like: Think a private fire brigade that sets the fires it charges to put out (the real 1800s insurance-brigade racket), a Borderlands-grade enthusiasm applied to arson, a protection racket in a firefighter's helmet. Heroes who manufacture the rescue.
