

Inspector Pelt

Player-facing description

A round-eyed ribbet inspector sits beneath hanging seals in a purple sash, clutching forms, stamps, and a frog-stiff posture that begs nobody to shout.

Public role

Bureaucracy with sweat on its brow, where the rules collide with people.

Handout text

Player-safe note: A checkpoint compliance officer clinging to a stamp pad like it can save them.

GM truth

He often signs things he does not understand because asking is riskier.

GM handling

Bureaucracy comedy, forged stamp problem, or delay pressure.

Mechanics

- Title: Social / Information Mechanics
- Player Safe: Players can interact, comfort, persuade, or earn trust Inspector Pelt when it is present in the fiction.
- Gm Only: Use the roll only when the player's method, stakes, and consequence are concrete.
- No Roll Reveals: Surface read: A checkpoint compliance officer clinging to a stamp pad like it can save them. Give obvious visible facts freely; roll for meaning, risk, leverage, cost, or a hidden angle.

- Block1: Inspector Pelt in-SPEK-ter PELT a checkpoint compliance officer terrified of being blamed Bureaucracy with sweat on its brow, where the rules collide with people. A comedic and revealing obstacle; the right form, or the right pressure, moves him. He cares about the right stamp, not the right answer, because the stamp is the thing that saves his neck. A way forward A grounded question A scene-specific clue seed Anxious and deferential, desperate not to be noticed by anyone above him. Show him a path where the problem becomes somebody else's form to sign.
- Block2: Move the problem through the right form so nobody above him notices the delay. Survive bureaucracy without becoming important enough to be blamed. Move the problem through the right form so nobody above him notices the delay. Survive bureaucracy without becoming important enough to be blamed. Fear filed neatly under compliance. Sits frog-stiff beneath his hanging seals, begging nobody to shout. Wears, hidden under the sash, the route-token of the first traveler he ever waved through for free. I need the right stamp, not the right answer. He often signs things he does not understand because asking is riskier. A superior, a missing stamp, and crates whose contents make him responsible. Correct margins, sympathetic faces, and procedures that let him say yes safely. Raised voices, ambiguous seals, and people asking what the rule is for. - Block3: He expects travelers to bully him and superiors to punish him. Procedure, sympathy, or a forged Compliance Stamp lands. Intimidation makes him cite more rules. Presence 12 They give the useful clue, route, or concession without becoming the plot. He does not fight; he can gum the scene with process or unlock it with face-saving authorization.
- Block4: One scene-level clue or route, phrased plainly. Custody paperwork outranks truth in the system. Use this backup as a scene seed only: one clue, one pressure, one human face, then return agency to the PCs. Terrified of company authority, not loyal to its cruelty. Custody paperwork outranks truth in the system. Custody paperwork outranks truth in the system. Any PC can engage; never make the plot depend on the summoned backup.
