Player read-aloud

The runes stutter. Somewhere under the soil, something old receives permission to continue.

Scene summary

Player questions

- What detail in Market Correction tells you the official story is incomplete?
- Who notices the human cost first, and how do they show it?
- What small object, smell, or sound makes this scene feel real?

GM notes

- Use only if the fight needs pressure or if a Soul-Audit Wraith module effect needs a fast enemy for countdown progress.
- Keep player-facing information actionable. Reveal systemic truth through objects, reactions, and consequences before naming it.
- Manufactured-threat lens: seed the contradiction, do not explain it. The surface goal stays simple and heroic.

Checks and rolls

- Any heroic approach Break the correction's pressure through action, care, or sacrifice. Hard Determine strong or unstable ward outcome. 20 Cleanly resolve: Break the correction's pressure through action, care, or sacrifice. Add a concrete boon, extra clue, or improved position. Success, plus the player names one helpful detail or asks one follow-up question. Success, but the GM exposes a cost, ticks a countdown, or reveals a new pressure tied to Market Correction. The full goal slips, but the party still learns a useful truth or avoids the worst consequence. The GM makes a hard move that follows from the fiction and leaves the next choice visible. Spend Fear to tick the ritual countdown, expose the Custodian, activate ward backlash, or trigger Market Correction. On mixed or sliding results, reveal information in layers: visible fact, actionable clue, then systemic truth.

Clues

- Market Correction pulse The final threat is systemic. No boss monster owns the harm. The infrastructure reacts to care as inefficiency.

Loot

- Cold seal wax
- Humming stone chip
- Keystone Asset?: Inside the sealed crate, packed in wax-paper and reassurance, sits a heavy grey stone the size of a loaf, warm to the touch, faintly humming, with a light deep inside it that is slowly going out.
