A narrow working path through mosslit water channels that rewards trust built in Hush. The safe irrigation path is narrow, useful, and trusted: mosslit water, low bridges, and farm markers that only make sense if someone explained them. The path is safe only because somebody walks it every morning and fixes whatever the water loosened overnight. It is narrow, slick, and known by heart to people who have never once drawn it on a map. The place breaks into usable table spaces: Raised plank run: A narrow path keeps boots above black water. Water-gate switchback: Several small gates divide channels. Reed blind: Tall reeds hide both wildlife and watchers. Plants and materials: slick moss on planks, tall reeds, water herbs, tiny white canal flowers. Animals and background life: Ratcoons move under the planks, Festival Moths cluster by lantern bends, small fish flash in gate shadows. The air carries board creak, water gulp, gnat hum, distant co-op...

Instinct D14 Knowledge D14 Presence D14 If the clue is plainly visible, give the SHOW text freely first: Hush looks freshly painted and warmly tended, but the little public board is crowded with service fees, late-payment ribbons, and household ledger slips marked again and again in outgoing ink. With Fear on Agility, give the clue but add bite: The first read accepts the cheerful surface and misses how much labor and coin are flowing out. The truth remains reachable, but it costs time, attention, trust, or a new complication.
