Goldspire_Location_Packet/01_Sablewood_Preserve.md True strong Old Sable The living old forest beneath the brand. The living old forest beneath the brand. Old Sable is the forest underneath the brand, too old to argue and too alive to be reduced to route language. Old Sable is Sablewood without the managerial mask: slower, darker, wetter, and old enough that a humanoid road feels like a recent suggestion. The place breaks into usable table spaces: Cathedral trunks: The trunks rise like towers, each with roots big enough to hide a table. Animal courts: Clearings are shaped by repeated animal use rather than tools. Old road bones: Stone, plank, and sign fragments show where older routes failed. Green hush pockets: Sound drops away under thick leaves. Plants and materials: car-wide sable trunks with roots that rise like stair rails and force roads to negotiate around them, ledgerleaf vines whose flat leaves curl shut when touched, as if refusing unofficial inspection, blue-green moss mats that remember footsteps for a few minutes before springing back, larkmoth orchids that bloom only where insects have been loud for several days. Animals and...
