

Character Creation

What it is

The beginner sequence for choosing identity, ancestry, community, class, traits, equipment, Experiences, and connections.

How it works

Use during Session Zero or when importing a new Level 1 PC into the one-shot.

Step by step

- Use during Session Zero or when importing a new Level 1 PC into the one-shot.
- Start with who the character is, then ancestry, community, class/subclass, traits, Experiences, equipment, and connection questions.
- Return to the fiction with the concrete result, cost, or benefit.

- Summary: The beginner sequence for choosing identity, ancestry, community, class, traits, equipment, Experiences, and connections.
- When: Use during Session Zero or when importing a new Level 1 PC into the one-shot.
- Not When: Do not rebuild pregen math at a public one-shot unless Kyle intentionally chooses a longer Session Zero mode.
- Question: What do I choose first?
- Answer: Start with who the character is, then ancestry, community, class/subclass, traits, Experiences, equipment, and connection questions.
- Example: A player can keep Barnacle's Rogue math and only rename, reskin, and rewrite one Experience for a faster table start.
