

EPILOGUE - Epilogue: Beyond the Contract

Player text

The screeching is gone. The clearing is quiet, the open sky calm. Somewhere west, a city you may never see is waking up safe because of what you did tonight. The Custodian is already shuffling you back toward warmth and food and a fire that does not want anything from you. For the first time since the road, there is nothing chasing you. You won. Sit with that a while.

Public objective

Rest, reckon with what you did, and decide what you carry forward.

- Gmbeats: epilogue-quiet Quiet The quiet after Say: "The fight is over. Let the quiet land." The fight is over. The clearing is still, and the win finally has room to arrive. The conclusion starts with relief. Table spotlight gives everyone a breath. Players feel the win before any hook. Player takeaway Players feel the win before any hook. "The fight is over. Let the quiet land." "Players feel the win before any hook." Use this beat to give the players closure, not a new problem to solve. table-spotlight Story takeaway The conclusion starts with relief. "The fight is over. Let the quiet land." "The conclusion starts with relief." Tie the answer back to what the party already did and chose. table-spotlight Mechanic takeaway Table spotlight gives everyone a breath. "The fight is over. Let the quiet land." "Table spotlight gives everyone a breath." The epilogue mechanics are reward, reflection, report payoff, and choosing which door stays open. table-spotlight epilogue-reward Reward Warmth and reward Say: "Reward first: level up, get paid, and let the people you saved thank you." - Takeawayhelp: Player takeaway You did the hard thing and lived. Take the win, take the level, and take a breath. "Heroes. Genuinely. Enjoy the warm room and the good company. You earned it." "Talk to the Custodian, talk to each other, collect your reward, or just be people for a minute." This is permission to slow down. The table should feel satisfied before any hook appears. level-up report-choice table-spotlight Story takeaway The story is over, and now it gets to mean something. "No more fighting. This is the breath after. You earned it." "The threat is over. The reckoning is rewards, goodbyes, and what you have started to suspect." Closure comes first. Intrigue only works after the win lands. level-up report-choice table-spotlight Mechanic takeaway The epilogue uses reward, reflection, report payoff, and hook choice rather than combat or countdown. "You are leveling up tonight. You will get your due, say your goodbyes, and choose what, if anything, you chase next." "There is no survival check here. There is reward, RP, and the doors the Custodian and your own instincts leave open." No combat, no countdown, no new active threat. The mechanics are reward and choice. level-up report-choice...
