- Alt: Relay Spire location map board.
- Caption: The official future door: a failing light in the west.
- Mood: spatial reference and location texture
- Gmgoal: Use the map as the visual anchor for the official Relay hook. Do not make it playable this session.
- Publicobjective: Stone spires break through the treeline, each holding a small flame. One light westward burns weaker than the rest.
- Readaloud: Stone spires break through the treeline, each holding a small flame. One light westward burns weaker than the rest.
- Gmnotes: The Relay Spire is a door left open, not an encounter.
- Gmscript: Say: "This is a vista, not a dungeon. The weak light is the hook; the map is what she can give you later."
- Gmreadaloud: Stone spires break through the treeline. One western light burns weaker than it should.
- Gmchecklist: Show as hook context only. Offer Instinct or Knowledge only if players study the light. Do not start travel or combat. Set relay_hook_accepted from the party's answer.
- Gmprivate: GM-only underside: the failure may be engineered. Drop that only as a clue if players already connect the pattern.
- Playertakeaway: Stone spires break through the treeline, each holding a small flame. One light westward burns weaker than the rest.
- Storytakeaway: The official hook is clear and heroic: a light is failing in the west.

- Mechanictakeaway: Use Instinct/Knowledge only to read the light; sequel_direction records the door left open.

- Playerquestions: Do you take the map? Who looks longest at the weak light?
- Fearsponds: None ? this is denouement. Save tension for the next adventure. Leave one thread dangling on purpose: the Custodian's offhand "or becomes sentient" about the Keystone. Don't explain it. Let it haunt.
- Choicesconsequences: Take the map. The official hook stays open. Set relay_hook_accepted=true. Future direction can be relay or both. relay_hook_accepted=true Reward: clear next door. player-visible Let the night end. The one-shot closes with rest. Set sequel_direction=undecided if no other hook lands. No next scene is forced. sequel_direction=undecided Reward: complete closure. player-visible
- Spoilers: GM-only location fields, combat notes, canon notes, and hidden-truth context stay off the player display.

- Gmbeats: MAP-LOC-relay-spire-vista Vista Seen from above Say: "The weak flame is the hook. You are not entering that place tonight." Stone spires and one weak flame give the table a simple visual hook. The future is a horizon, not a new scene. Map use is contextual only. Players understand the visual hook. Player takeaway Players understand the visual hook. "The weak flame is the hook. You are not entering that place tonight." "Players understand the visual hook." Use this beat to give the players closure, not a new problem to solve. table-spotlight Story takeaway The future is a horizon, not a new scene. "The weak flame is the hook. You are not entering that place tonight." "The future is a horizon, not a new scene." Tie the answer back to what the party already did and chose. table-spotlight Mechanic takeaway Map use is contextual only. "The weak flame is the hook. You are not entering that place tonight." "Map use is contextual only." The epilogue mechanics are reward, reflection, report payoff, and choosing which door stays open. table-spotlight
- Takeawayhelp: Player takeaway The Relay is a future door, not tonight's danger. "The weak flame is the hook. You are not entering that place tonight." "You can take the map or let the night end complete." Keep the table relaxed. report-choice table-spotlight Story takeaway A failing western light gives the official heroic hook. "A Keeper may be in trouble. That is enough for the official hook." "The Relay is west, a few hours away, and the Custodian can guide you later." No future one-shot is planned here. report-choice table-spotlight Mechanic takeaway Instinct/Knowledge can read the light; state records whether the door stays open. "If you study the light, Instinct or Knowledge 12 tells you it is weaker than it should be." "Set relay_hook_accepted and sequel_direction from their answer." No combat state or countdown belongs here. report-choice table-spotlight
