

S04-05 - Toward Open Vale

Player text

The Custodian gathers what she needs with the brisk energy of someone much younger than she looks. "The Open Vale is where the ward was first forged," she says. "It is where it must be renewed." She looks at each of you in turn. "I cannot do this alone, and what comes for us when the magic rises will not be gentle. But I think you already knew the job was bigger than a crate." When you are ready, the treehouse unfolds one last time, and the road to the Open Vale opens before you.

Public objective

Commit to the ritual and set out for the Open Vale.

- Alt: Toward Open Vale scene art for The Hanging Office.
- Caption: The final approach turns understanding into preparation.
- Mood: The Hanging Office
- Gmgoal: Convert the reveal into commitment, offer real preparation, and bridge to Act 5.
- Publicobjective: Commit to the ritual and set out for the Open Vale.
- Readaloud: The Custodian gathers what she needs with the brisk energy of someone much younger than she looks. "The Open Vale is where the ward was first forged," she says. "It is where it must be renewed." She looks at each of you in turn. "I cannot do this alone, and what comes for us when the magic rises will not be gentle. But I think you already knew the job was bigger than a crate." When you are ready, the treehouse unfolds one last time, and the road to the Open Vale opens before you.
- Gmnotes: This is the bridge scene. The important output is state, not more lore. A reluctant yes still counts if the party chooses the hard road with eyes open.
- Gmscript: Say: "Before we go: you can rest, prepare, ask her what to expect, or spend any favor you earned. It all matters when the ritual starts."
- Gmreadaloud: "The Open Vale is where the ward was first forged." "I cannot do this alone." The treehouse unfolds one last time, and the road to the Open Vale opens before you.
- Gmchecklist: Do not railroad the yes; let the stakes and trust carry it. Offer prep: rest, learn the ritual, spend festival_boon or Hush favor, plan positions. Set

- ritual_prep ready/unready. Set final custodian_trust. Set ward_stability fragile/stable for Act 5. Use MAP-LOC-open-vale-ward-lines as the forward edge.
- Gmprivate: Convergence math: high trust + deep understanding + ready prep = ward_stability stable. Otherwise fragile. If package_status=lost, commitment can exist emotionally but Act 5 cannot proceed normally until the recovery branch is confirmed.
 - Playertakeaway: You are choosing the hard road on purpose, and what you do before you walk it will keep you alive.
 - Storytakeaway: The party chooses to finish what the job started, not just because of pay but because the stakes are now real.
 - Mechanictakeaway: Preparation is the mechanic: rest, learn, spend boons, and plan; ritual_prep and ward_stability set the Act 5 countdown pressure.

- Choicesconsequences: Commit and prepare The party rests, asks questions, spends boons, or plans positions. Set ritual_prep=ready; ward_stability can become stable if trust/understanding support it. Act 5 ritual countdown starts kinder and the Custodian aid is stronger. ritual_prep ready; ward_stability stable possible benefit player-visible Commit but rush The party keeps momentum but leaves questions and resources unused. Set ritual_prep=unready; ward_stability likely fragile. Act 5 begins under harder pressure. ritual_prep unready; ward_stability fragile penalty player-visible Spend festival_boon or Hush favor A charm, favor, market find, or goodwill becomes real prep. Can improve ritual_prep or justify ward_stability stable. The Act 3 festival choice pays off in the finale. festival_boon spent; ritual_prep ready benefit player-visible Ask the Custodian what to expect She names the ritual shape and what the rising magic will draw. Knowledge or Presence can clarify roles; set ritual_prep=ready. Act 5 starts with better fictional positioning. ritual_prep ready benefit player-visible
