- Personality: Carries the whole camp's survival like a debt he co-signed. Hard-jawed in front of the scouts, unsure the moment they look away. Believes the road stole from his people first, and is terrified of becoming the exact villain the company already wrote him as.
- Wants: Keep the ambush from becoming a massacre while still taking something useful.
- Fears: Becoming exactly the violent story the companies already wrote about them.
- Secrets: Kett has doubts about whether the current plan protects the camp or just spends it.
- Body Language: Give it one tactile detail when introduced. Connect it to a choice, clue, or consequence.

- Sample Dialogue: We are done paying tolls on roads that used to feed us. Step away from the carriage and nobody has to bleed. You think this route was made safe for us?
