- Summary: A Hexmart pocket-ward vendor selling charm strings that work just well enough to be dangerous.
- Role: The cheerful face of a protection racket that does not know it is one.
- Wants: Make a sale and prove the charms are not a scam.
- Sample Dialogue: It worked this morning. Mostly. That counts as inspected.
- Robust: A beaming halfling peddler presents a tray of blue charms, brass rings, and useless-but-beautiful pocket wards with both hands and all their hope. The wards have been failing more often than he admits. A beaming halfling peddler presents a tray of blue charms, brass rings, and useless-but-beautiful pocket wards with both hands and all their hope. Full-body reference: Full-body halfling peddler presenting a tray of glinting charms, eager sales posture, garish teal and gold colors, head to feet in frame. Make a sale and prove the charms are not a scam. Refunds, ridicule, and the day he has to tell his creditors the tray is worthless. Add comedy, a useful trinket, or a failed-protection seed. Knowledge / Instinct / Presence as fits the table 15 Learn the clean fact about Wicket and one deeper connection. Learn the useful fact and gain a follow-up question. Learn the fact, but reveal who notices, who is endangered, or what timer advances. Miss the full answer, but gain a sensory clue or safe next step. Misread the pressure and invite a GM move tied to cost, custody, or danger. Spend Fear to reveal the system behind the object, move a threat closer, or make a choice more costly...
