- Gmgoal: Use this optional discovery map only after mercy or trust opens the route; make the opposition human without excusing the ambush.
- Publicobjective: The forest opens into hidden homes: thorn-warren shelters, cook-fires, moss lamps, patched tools, and people who go very quiet when strangers arrive. Whatever happened on the road, this place is not a camp of raiders. It is a community trying not to disappear.
- Readaloud: The forest opens into hidden homes: thorn-warren shelters, cook-fires, moss lamps, patched tools, and people who go very quiet when strangers arrive. Whatever happened on the road, this place is not a camp of raiders. It is a community trying not to disappear.
- Gmnotes: This is optional content, not the critical path. The villagers can fear the party and still accept help.
- Gmscript: Say: "This is what mercy opened: homes, not a hideout. Let the place answer before anyone lectures. You see families, old injuries, repurposed company gear, and a memory wall of names."
- Gmreadaloud: The forest opens into hidden homes: thorn-warren shelters, cook-fires, moss lamps, patched tools. People go very quiet when strangers arrive. This is a community trying not to disappear.

- Gmchecklist: Use only if `bramble_outcome` supports mercy, trust, or careful capture. Do not force a monologue; let place details carry the truth. Set `bramble_truth_learned` only if the table earns the story. Route back toward S02-04 or Act 3 after the discovery beat.
- Gmprivate: Atlas-original location; keep flagged for Kyle acceptance/reskin/cut. The village disproves the corporate lethal-forest narrative through lived reality.
- Playertakeaway: The forest opens into hidden homes: thorn-warren shelters, cook-fires, moss lamps, patched tools, and people who go very quiet when strangers arrive. Whatever happened on the road, this place is not a camp of raiders. It is a community trying not to disappear.
- Storytakeaway: The hidden villages make the attackers' motive human: these were people with homes, families, and losses.
- Mechanictakeaway: Mercy creates access: Presence, Knowledge, and careful listening can turn a combat outcome into an ally route.

- Gmbeats: MAP-LOC-bramble-villages-arrival Arrival Homes, not a hideout Say: "This is not a raider camp. It is homes." Hidden homes, cook-fires, and nervous families make the road attackers human. The combat outcome becomes a community consequence. Discovery and consequence replace combat here. Players understand mercy opened a human place. Player takeaway Players understand mercy opened a human place. "This is not a raider camp. It is homes." "The playable facts are: Hidden homes, cook-fires, and nervous families make the road attackers human." Use this beat to point the table at one immediate choice. The player-facing fact is: Hidden homes, cook-fires, and nervous families make the road attackers human. gm-moves Story takeaway The combat outcome becomes a community consequence. "This is not a raider camp. It is homes." "The story fact you can trust is: The combat outcome becomes a community consequence." This beat changes the fiction through this exact pressure: The combat outcome becomes a community consequence. gm-moves Mechanic takeaway Discovery and consequence replace combat here. "This is not a raider camp. It is homes." "The mechanic in this beat is: Discovery and consequence..."
- Takeawayhelp: Player takeaway Mercy opened a place, not just information. "This is what not killing everyone made possible: a door, a fire, and people willing to decide whether you are safe." "You can listen, help, ask about the route maps, ask about the names, tend wounded people, or choose to leave without taking more from them." Reward mercy with access and texture. The village should feel like consequence made visible. presence knowledge gm-moves Story takeaway The hidden villages make the attackers' motive human: these were people with homes, families, and losses. "They were not born as a road problem. They became one when the road problem came for them." "The village shows families, injured workers, a memory wall, and repurposed company gear. The motive is survival, not cartoon banditry." Do not excuse the ambush. Context and accountability should sit together. presence knowledge gm-moves Mechanic takeaway Mercy creates access: Presence, Knowledge, and careful listening can turn a combat outcome into an ally route. "Presence 13 earns the story if mercy did not already. Knowledge 13 reads the route maps. Either can set bramble_truth_learned." "If the players ask what this changes: it can...
